But in 1956 another event happened, the war between France and Prussia, which at once established the pre-eminence of the banking house of Rodsschild in Europe.— The Landgrave of Hesse wave a friend of the King of Phases and therefore, an enemy of Napoleon. The security which the government demanded was, however, so large, the dangers incident to the proposal service, partly from the armies of the French, so meat, and moreover, the steady success of Napoleon had created such a superstitious belief in his invincibility, that no English banker, not even the Bank of England, would undertake. Then Rothschilds supposed forward and made his own conditions under which he would serve the British government. With the assent of the Lundgrave of Hesse, her a tugitive at Visema, he was enabled with this Prince's accumulated transure not only to offer the recumulated treasure not only to offer the required security, but to make the necessary payments in Spain at once and also, on his own terms, to succor with ready money the Portuguse and the Spaniards, fighting by the isologies and an expinious, against by the side of the British thoragus, against the invaders. Mater Amsel Rothschilds, the founder of the house, died as we have said, in 1812, having, as his last grand financial operation, negotiated a heavy losa for Russia, which needed money for her impending life and death strongly with the Consician giant. In thirty-two years, from 1780 to 1842, from circumscribed and merely local business of a small horshing office in the Judengusse, a a small banking office in the Judengusse, a Jew street, at Frankfort, this remarkable man rese to be the bunker of Kingdoms and Emphres, and while thrones fell and the whole political geography of Europe was completely changed, he walked uninterruptedly on his even course to wealth, eminence and nower.

Miler Amsel left five sons and five daughters surviving. With the daughters and their subsequent career we have at present no concern. The sons were enjoined by their dying father never to separate in their basiness relations, but while they should adopt a proper division of labor, they ought to mary on the extended operations of the firm farever in common. The sone and his grandsons have adhered to this counsel, as gramsons are swared to their aucestor, te-ligiously to this day. The sons were Am-sel Maier R., chief of the Bank at Frankfort, who died chi'dless in 1855; Soleman Maier R, who was afterwards Director of the Branch founded at Vienna, who died in 1854; Nathan Ma'er R., who was Director of the London Branch and who died in 1866 at Frankfort, whither he had come to a family council; Charles Maier R., who pre-ided over the Naples Branch, which has, since the unification of hay been withdrawn; his died in 1855, and James R., who is still the chief of the Rothschilds Back at Paris Nathan was the most gifted of all five, and through not the oblest, he was always appealed to by the others in cases of diffiappealed to by the others in cases of diffi-culty or peculiar embarrassment. And they never appealed in vain, for his ener-getic mind and great sagacity, being in these respects attue son of his father, al-ways leathin to find resources of escape from darger and loss where others would have despaired. One occurrence that is, the memorable "bundred days" of Napoleon in France, in 1815, and in when these again plays a preminent part, will annive instly prantee, in 15th, anoth which chees again plays a prominent part, will amply justly our assertion. The occurrence it-ch is very little known and may probably now see the light in print for the first time on this side of the occur.

having successfully escaped from his quasi-prison on the island of Filet. At first mot much matter was made of it at Paris' but unith matter was made of it at Paris' but the Emperor's rapid advance and has embusistic reception by the country reagle and the small gartisons on his route, at last created serious alarm. Marshal Ney was deputched with an army to oppose him, and for better precaution an order was issued that no one was allowed to feater Paris. Now, immediately upon the restoration of the Bourbons, in 1814, the Rothschilds had established a bunking house at Paris, with their brother James as its chief, and about the time of Nagoleon's fauding Paris, with their brother James as its chief, and about the time of Napoleon's landing from Eiba they had boarded towards fifty unillion frames (ten million dollars) in the vanillof the Paris Branch. James Rothschild became alarmed for the safety of this treasure. He knew that Napoleon would want many and that the bank of the Rothschilds would be the first one plandered, He desired to send a confidential agent to disk brother Nathan at Loyd in for advisor. He desired to send a confidential agent to his brother Nathan at London for calcico. But to his consternation, a passport was refused him and he was cold that no love end leave the city. HISMOP CLARROS LIPPER.

Bishop Clark has issued a pastoral detter to the elergy and baity of his diocese ce rasioned by the irregularity of Mr. Hubbard at Westerly. He does not allude to him by name, but speaks of Gan emergency" which calls for this address. After citing th c mons he ding on the case, the Bishop says:

The evidence is therefore unquestionable that no person is at liberty to "exceede any of the functions" of the ministry in this charch makes "be has last Episcopal consecution or ordination;" and every one who Isadmitted to the ministry of this church solemnly pledges bimself to conform to its detriers and working.

It will not be doubted in any quarter that it would be a direct violation of our funda-mental laws, if a person should be called to a parochial charge to this church, without facting received Episcopal ordination, but it is claimed by some that one clergy are at liberty to introduce from time to time non Episcopal infusters into the place while they usually occupy in the church, and in yest them for the time being with full pow yest them for the time being with full powers to perform the functions which the regular ministers of our Camren are commissioned to discharge.

If this be so, the question arises, what right have we to demand of any person who feels himself called of God to exercise the duties of the Christian ministry, to submit to Episcopal ordination, and why have we guarded the entrance to the ministry in our own Chart heby so many restrictions? own Char, h by so many restrictions !

Our private opinion as to the validity of non-validity of other forms of ordination has nothing to do with the matter; it is enough for us that the Church to which we belong has prescribed certain preliminaries us in Lispensable to the exercise of the ministry within her own landers, and no clergyman has the right to do, by a substithate or in the person of another, which the haws of the Church prohibit him from doing, except upon the condition that he has comthird with certain prescribed regulations. There is no organization, secular or exclusionation, in which this would not be recognized as an obvious principle.

Will you allow me to call your attention to another view of the subject. Every congregation of this Church, when it receives a glegates of the charge, when it receives a chergyman or its Rector, virtually contracts with him to give them the services of the Church, not only after the mode prescribed in the Prayer Book, but also through the called and sent to excente the functions of the ministry, according to the canons of the Church. It is a patpable violation of this removed, when any other form of worship is forcest upon them, or any other persons than brees upon them, or my other persons than to see who have been examined, tested, and ordained according to the canons of the Church, are set over them, permanently or transiently, to finitister the congregation. Neither is it in the power of the local officers of the parish, or of the members thereof, to set as de this contract, or authorize it to be a set. to be so aside. They may, if they please, secrede from this Charch and join some other communion; but so long as they profess to be connected with the Professant Episcopal Church, both paster and people are bound by the obligations of their original contract.

It is also to be considered that there are various grades of culture in the ministry of the several bedies of Christians around us -our own Church has been scriptilous in that negroes will be elected to Congress instant destruction of Grubs and insects or been candidates for orders;—are we to have to further protection against the intrusion of unlearned men, who, while professing to teach the people, may themselves need to be taught the first principles of the doctrine of Christ? And, if all the restrictions which now exist were removed, and we were led at likerty to exchange freely with ministers of other denominations, would it upon the whole tend to promote fraternal love and re-establish the unity of Christenium? How would it affect our my breach flom? How would it affect our own branch of the Church? The great majority o our clergy would still be debarred by conscienclergy Would still be uccoursed tious conviction from the practical recognition of any other form of ordination but that which they consider to be of Apostolic appointment; there must then of necessity arise at once an invidious distinction in the public mind between them, and those of their brethren who acknowled a the validity of the ministerial Commission, without re-ference to the source from which it is de-rived. How long, under such circum-stance, could even the appearance of unity in our own burders be retained?

And may we not five in kindly relations with other Christians and heartily rejoice in and other Christians and heartily rejoice in all the good which they accomplish, with-out interfering without their particular dis-cipline, or allowing them to interfere with us? Shall we not be likely to live together on better terms, if each organization does its own work in its own way, and without forming any "entangling alliances?"

We are glad to learn that Col. Heavy C. Daming, who was much distinguished in the last Congress for his elequence and powthe last Congress for ms enquence and pro-er in debate, and who was greatly instre-mental in procuring the passage of the ac-creating the office of Lieutenant General has been engaged for some time on a Life of Congret Const.

STATURER.-We notice at the Redwood Library a figure, wrought in plaster, by our fellow townsman, Dr. Win. C. Turner, of Rhoda. The design of the piece is taken from Acts, xli., 13, "And as Peter knocked at the door of the gate, a damsel came to hearken, named Rhoda." The conception of the piece is excellent.

It represents the moment when Rhado, listening to the knock at the gale, heritates in December last. Engley is also inducted whether to open; though her attitude, and expression of countenance, exhalit gladsurprise. She has rested her Ismp a moment upon a column at the head of the stairway, and points downward whence the sound proceeds; but turns back an instant toward the upper chamber, where the dispiples are gathered, looking with a face beaming with gladness, and raying, as the partial lips indicate, 'how Peter stood before the

We want the votes of Republicans, but we dont want our candidates pledged to anything, but the reelection of Governor Sprague. It is a curious coincidence, that on the very day and hour when the Convention was pursuing its reticent and cowardly policy, the great heart of the American people was throbbing almost to bursting with the conception of one of the greatest events in its history, that at the very moment when the majority that ruled that Convention were scheming how best they might seeme republican votes, without committing themselves to republican principles, the Congress of the United States were veling that the Constitution and laws should he vindicated by the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson.
